PROGRAM INFORMATION: The Alfred P. Sloan Foundation will award fellowships to early-career scientists for use in their research. Nominated by department chairs, senior researchers and other leaders in the scientific community, the Sloan Research Fellows represent the next generation of top scholars in the sciences, economics, and mathematics.

Since 1955 when the program began, 42 Sloan Research Fellows have gone on to win Nobel Prizes, 63 have been awarded the National Medal of Science, 17 have won the Fields Medal in mathematics, 14 have won the John Bates Clark medal in economics and hundreds have received other prizes, recognitions, awards and honors for their research accomplishments.

Funds from the Sloan Research Fellowships are awarded directly to the Fellow’s institution and may be used over a two-year period by the Fellow for any activity supportive of the Fellow’s research, such as equipment, technical assistance, professional travel, or trainee support.

WHO MAY BE NOMINATED:
- Candidates must hold a Ph.D. (or equivalent) in chemistry, computational or evolutionary molecular biology, computer science, economics, mathematics, neuroscience, ocean sciences, physics, or a related field
- Candidates must hold a tenure track with a yearly teaching requirement
- Candidates’ most recent Ph.D. must have been awarded on or after September 2009
- Sloan Research Fellowships are awarded for research in the following eight fields:
  - Chemistry
  - Neuroscience
  - Computer Science
  - Ocean Sciences
  - Economics
  - Physics
  - Mathematics
  - Computational and Evolutionary Molecular Biology
- Candidates with appointments in other departments are eligible for nomination.
