PROGRAM PURPOSE:
• To support the career development of junior faculty and enable innovative bioethics research that goes beyond current work in bioethics to help resolve pressing ethical issues in biomedical research, clinical care and public policy.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS:
• Applicants should demonstrate that their research will have an outsize impact on public policy, biomedical research, or clinical practice; and the potential to make important contributions to the field of bioethics over their careers
• Projects should make a significant advance beyond what has already been published on the topic
• Scholars will be selected on the basis of their achievements and demonstrated ability to carry out the research, the strength of their research project, their commitment to the field of bioethics, and support from their home institution
• Priority will be given to applicants whose research addresses innovative ideas and/or emerging topics, while lower priority will be given to applicants who are primarily carrying out educational reform or theoretical work with limited applicability to practice, research or health care delivery
• The Foundation does not fund 1) scholars to carry out bioethics teaching, institutional change or quality improvement on bioethics issues; 2) theoretical ethics research; 3) survey research or qualitative research that touches on a bioethics issue unless there is a strong conceptual analysis of the bioethics issue or thoughtful analysis of the bioethics implications of empirical findings; 4) basic science research that has implications for a bioethics issue; and 5) bioethics work directed towards predetermined conclusions

ELIGIBILITY: Applicants must be a junior faculty member holding an appointment that allows at least 50 percent of their effort to perform research. Priority will be given to applicants who have not yet been considered for tenure or an equivalent promotion. Priority will be given to those with a track record in bioethics research, including publication on bioethics in a peer-reviewed journal. Please follow Tufts PI eligibility policies.

AWARD INFORMATION: The award supports 50% of a Scholar’s salary plus benefits for three years (up to the NIH salary cap) with 10% institutional costs for the salary and benefits, plus $5,000 each year for project support and travel.
